After the meeting the hostess served a dainty lunch.

R.C.A.F. Launch Recruiting Campaign

The Royal Canadian Air Force is shortly to launch a nationwide recruiting campaign. Flight Lieutenant D. V. Kyle, Recruiting Officer of North West Air Command, announced in Edmonton this week.

Two main features of the campaign are the increased rates of pay and special benefits for ex-servicemen and tradesmen. Veterans with six months or more service will be awarded classification of Aircraftman 1st Class instead of Aircraftman 2nd Class which is normally given to recruits. Those who have served eighteen months or more will, on enlistment, be given the classification of Leading Aircraftman.

An arrangement has also been made whereby men possessing skill in a trade related to an Air Force trade may be given a trade grouping with additional pay. Normally, recruits on enlistment were given "standard" or basic grouping. Under the new arrangement they may be given the higher "C", "B" or "A" grouping as determined by Royal Canadian Air Force trade tests. Trade pay will be in addition to normal pay of rank.

Application forms are being distributed to post offices across Canada. Men with the minimum of grade ten or eleven education who wish to apply can obtain the necessary forms from their local post office.

Empire Day Message

From the President
THE EARL OF GOWRIE
V.C., P.C., G.C.M.G., CB, DSO

This first Empire Day after the end of a great world war, which threatened the structure of human society and embittered human relationships, finds us in a mood in which we may easily become discouraged, losing faith and hope in those ideals which inspired our great war effort.

Now the dangers of war are removed it is imperative to appreciate that other dangers, though less apparent, still threaten the peace of the world. The future confronts us with the challenge as to whether material power and economic necessity are to mould our destiny or whether, by conscious endeavour, the spirit of man can govern events and direct our forward march toward the highest attainment of human welfare and universal goodwill.

Unless our great Victory inspires us to make a fresh start to meet the desperate human need for peace and security, based upon friendship, between all races and creeds of mankind, our sacrifice and suffering will have been in vain. An ever greater effort, therefore, is now demanded from each one of us to exercise patience and stern resolution during the coming years of reconstruction. By these achievements will the character of the British peoples be judged.

What interpretation of human relationships does the British Empire offer to this bewildered and distracted world? The loyalty and unity so strikingly manifested by our Empire peoples, of many races and creeds, is proof that mutual understanding and co-operation between nations are within the reach of all mankind. We have shown that by tolerance, patience and self-restraint, it is possible for nations to strive together for common ideals of freedom and mutual well-being. In the universal acceptance of these principles lies our hope for the future.

The celebration of this Empire Day is therefore the dedication to faithful service for our Empire in its great task of promoting world peace and goodwill and in overcoming the passions and distortions which today threaten the destruction of our civilization.

May God grant us wisdom and sincerity in all our endeavours.

DOMINION PROVINCIAL CONFERENCE

When it was announced in the daily papers and on the radio that all the nine premiers and their aides were to convene in Ottawa to discuss the taxation field and other matters important to the everyday lives of the people of Canada, everyone held hope that there would be something actually accomplished in this regard.

Now that the shouting has subsided and the smoke of battle is over, it is very clear that nothing clear-cut was accomplished, excepting the fact that there is harmony between 79th of Canada and the other 27th are out to break any continuity in the field of advancement.

It is the same old story of "if you don't want to play my way, I won't play in your yard." At least that is the impression that is given when Mr. Duplessis of Quebec, after finding that he can't have his own way, walks out of the conference and goes back to his native land.

With one stroke of the imagination it is not very hard to see just how the unfavorable outcome of this conference will effect us. Wainwright is a very, very small frog in a very large puddle but just the same what effects the rest of Canada as a whole, effects us.

Both Mr. Drew of Ontario, and Mr. Duplessis of Quebec should stop to think that it was majority rule that placed them in the position they are today. It was the wish of the people as a whole that gave them the opportunity of serving in the capacity of Premier of both provinces respectively. Just what is the reason then that majority rule should not prevail now when all of Canada is crying for unity on all fronts, both political and labor.

If the nine provinces had accepted the dominion government's proposals, they would have been better off financially. Also the fact that Canada's finances would have been more equally distributed, looms large in the minds of many people, mainly the western population who have always been lagging in respect to per capita income.

Surely we do not want to return to the pre-war system, filling separate income tax returns and the like. Income tax returns are never a pleasure at any time, but to file two separate returns (dominion and provincial) would make life just that much more complicated around the 31st of March.

Just what the outcome of the recent conference will be we do not know. One thing is certain though, and that is, if the powers that be have Canada's welfare and the true meaning of democracy at heart, they will work out a solution that will be acceptable to all.

It is going to be a very hard task to convince the war-torn peoples of Europe that democracy with all its short comings, is far better than anything here-to-fore tried. The large monster of fascism looms very near in the future unless we here in the western world show that we are made of sterner stuff, and show that democracy really works; we are headed for trouble in future years.

Let us hope that the men who are moulding the destiny of Canada, and in fact the world, keep this in mind.

THE BUS RUNS THROUGH

For nearly ten years now the Sunburst Bus lines have made Wainwright their eastern headquarters on this line. Now the picture has changed with the extension of the line through to Chauvin. This has been the aim of the Company's officials ever since the run was inaugurated, but due to poor roads east of Wainwright it could never be accomplished until this date, now the highway has been completed.

What the extension of the bus service will mean to Wainwright, only time will tell, but if we are allowed to venture a guess, we think that it will benefit the town to such a degree that it will make Wainwright the central shopping point of all the eastern territory from Irma to the Saskatchewan border.

The time table of the company has not changed much, with the bus arriving here at 9:05 p.m. from the west and arriving here at 7:35 a.m. from the east. The hours are conclusive to the idea that the new bus service will be beneficial to Wainwright in that, shoppers can arrive in Wainwright in the morning, shop all day, see the first picture show and arrive back home the same day. Therefore the same service is offered as in the city, the difference being, the passengers do not have to ride 10 or 11 hours to complete the trip and the cost of the tickets purchased will be substantially reduced.

Wainwright has always been a railroad town, and next to farming it is our second biggest industry that payrolls are drawn from. Many people who's lives are directly connected with the railroad will be adverse to seeing the bus line extended. We believe they should have no fears, as it will take both the railway and the bus company to give the most and best possible service to the travelling patrons.

By coming west into Wainwright via bus in the morning, it will be possible to shop and leave on the morning train going east. The same applies to coming west on the train in the afternoon and leaving again for the east on the bus at night.

This is a service rare to be found anywhere in the province, and Wainwright should feel proud to be in the central point, which in time will make it a better all round place to shop in.

Our hats are off to the men who have foresight, integrity and look ahead in ever advancing fields of service to their patrons.

We Married In Wartime

It all began on Friday, the thirteenth, I was in San Francisco on furlough just before entering OCS. I popped the question on a long distance phone call to Washington. It was all over in five minutes. Four months later we were man and wife.

We had two strikes against us already when we stepped up to the altar in wartime, for according to the experts, two-thirds of this country's war marriages would break up.

Mary Lou and I figure we'll stick together. Engaged on furlough and married on leave, we're now a part of the five million demobilized GIs and their families who are finding their feet in civilian life.

We had the usual battle finding a place to live in war-swollen Columbus, Georgia. It was a lot of fun—carrying her over the threshold, getting to know each other better, coming home after long, hot hours training troops in the field, the experiments of cooking and all the little surprises, like the slats falling out of the bed and dumping us on the floor.

Then one morning the world looked pretty black. You see, I had conceived in my mind's eye a pretty rosy idea of what marriage was like. I was going to be the big guy with all the ideas. But to my horror, she did NOT always agree with me. This particular morning she had again disagreed.

"Things are rough all over," I thought. She kicked me affectionately under the breakfast table and said, "Hey, it's not as bad as all that." She said later, though, that she wasn't so sure.

That afternoon I was off duty. We went for a walk in the park and sat down on a park bench. Suddenly she said, "I'm lonesome."

"Holy smoke," I thought to myself. "Here we are, married just three weeks, and she's lonesome already! All at once I saw how selfish I had been. So we sat quiet for a while."

Each of us had known before we were married the secret of getting direction and resolving difficulties by taking time to listen to God. The thoughts that came to me were, "I've been proud and wanted her to agree with me; it's not my ideas or hers, but God's ideas; and this is the only way to find a unified mind."

Mary Lou said, "I've tried to hold onto my ideas too, I just didn't want to do the laundry, I'm a dominating, self-willed, competitive woman, and need to learn to serve. This is the only way women can free their men for the great leadership demanded by these times."

So we are very grateful for that little park bench because there we rediscovered something that has made things different.

More than that we want to give away the secret we've discovered. We find that telling each other everything and pulling together toward the same goal gives us the edge on the statistics. We're more in love than ever. War marriages don't have to go on the rocks. Although I've taken off the uniform, we're both still in the fight for a new world.

Lockjaw Not Cured By Penicillin

Tetanus, more commonly known as lockjaw, does not respond to penicillin treatment, according to Dr. W. A. Altemeier of the University of Cincinnati College of Medicine and the Cincinnati General Hospital. His findings, based on a clinical study of 16 cases of established generalized tetanus were published in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

"Penicillin has not been beneficial in the treatment of tetanus because it has no effect on the Clostridium tetani toxin," wrote Dr. Altemeier. He went on to explain that tetanus is an acute infectious disease of the central nervous system caused by germs called Clostridium tetani.

He said that lockjaw occurs so frequently in small and insignificant wounds because these do not receive a physician's attention, whereas patients with large wounds are immediately injected with tetanus antitoxin which prevents the poison from spreading.

In this connection it is interesting to recall that Dr. Nellis Silverthorne of Toronto, chairman of the National Immunization Committee of the Health League, advocates use of tetanus toxoid as an immunization agent against lockjaw. In a widely publicized article in the magazine Health some months ago, he emphasized there is now available, either singly or combined with other immunizing agents, an effective tetanus toxoid—an agent similar in effect to diphtheria toxoid.

There is seldom any change through chance. We face today change by choice or change by force.

Empire Day Movement

An Empire Day message, written by the Earl of Gowrie, V.C., P.C., President of the Empire Day Movement, has been received from the chairman of the Movement, Lieut.-Col. Sir William A. Wayland by His Honour J. C. Bowen, Lieutenant-Governor of Alberta.

In consideration of the critical reconstruction period through which the world is passing, and also in consideration of the fact that this message has been sent to every part of the British Empire, His Honour expresses the hope that its reproduction on this year's anniversary will appear in all Alberta periodicals.

The "isms" demand sacrifice of the individual. Democracy depends on individual sacrifice.

INSURE against Auto Accidents

With the coming of the spring and summer motoring season the chances of an accident are greatly increased.

"THAT'S A LOAD OFF
MIND!"

Mrs. Mason's husband gets his pay in cash. Since he's working all day, his wife banks it for him, and she says she's always "littery" till she gets it safely there. And her brother, who runs a store, says he worries too about the money from the cash register! Safeguarding your money is one of the prime services rendered by your bank.

What a relief it is when you have deposited your money in the bank! No more worry lest it should be lost or stolen! You need only keep a little ready cash in your pocket or in the house. Bills can be paid by cheque and your cancelled cheque is your receipt.

When the teller hands you your pass book, you glance at the balance and know to a cent how much money you have. You are so accustomed to your bank's accuracy that you seldom bother to check the figures.

The very fact that you—and some 5,000,000 others—take all these conveniences as a matter of course is a daily demonstration of your confidence in the dependability and efficiency of your bank.

Massey-Harris Company, Limited
April 27th, 1946.

Mr. W. J. Huntington,
Wainwright Star,
Wainwright, Alberta.

Dear Mr. Huntington,

It seems strange that so much strife should be caused by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board authorization of a price increase on farm implements, when price increases on one thing after another have been authorized which affect the costs of farm implement production with no objection raised. Of course, it's the fact that it is so easy to make political capital out of what seems like taking a great stand on matters of concern to farmers. Farmers' votes are many.

The industry is at least fortunate this time in that the Government has come to our aid, for as Mr. Halsey said in the House in speaking on the decision of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, "I have faith in that board because I have worked with it over the last five or six years, and there is one thing I know they will not do: I know they will not authorize a price increase unless that price increase is absolutely necessary—and I should like hon. members to bear this in mind, that far from removing control over prices of farm machinery we are maintaining a most severe and rigid control, so much so that we have protests from the implement companies—for the analysis of costs conducted by the prices board indicated that a price increase of upwards of 30 per cent above 1941 levels would have been required to regain 1941 profit percentage margins for the farm implement industry."

I thought you might like to have some of the facts in connection with the industry and since these were made public by Mr. Halsey I felt that perhaps it might be best to refer you to Harnard for Monday, April 15th, and in case you have not it by you, enclose a few excerpts from it.

I can assure you our company, sensitive to the reputation that higher prices for implements invariably receive, is eager to keep prices as low as is consistent with the successful operation of the business, and is taking every step within its power to cut costs of production. The greatly increased costs of material and labor that make necessary present increases in prices have been and are beyond the control of the company.

All of this, simply that you might have some of the details to hand. With kind personal regards, Yours very truly,
JOHN MARTIN

Hints for the Household

MAKE THE MOST OF VEAL

When spring comes, the homemaker signs with pleasure at the thought that she may again plan menus to include veal. It is one of the more plentiful meats at this and its delicate flavour blends well with other foods. Early spring vegetables, which are also mild in flavour are particularly good with veal.

Most people love a good roast of veal, but does everyone know how to cook it? Long, slow cooking in dry heat will cook veal well and still keep it juicy. Experiments have shown that a maintained temperature of 325°F. will do the trick; provided the required length of time is allowed, 30 to 35 minutes per pound is considered best.

As veal lacks fat, being the meat from an animal not fully grown, an addition of fat will be necessary. Bacon fat, rubbed over the surface of the roast, not only adds fat but a particularly good flavour; occasional basting during the cooking will also help.

For top of the stove cooking, moist heat and low-simmering temperature will tenderize the meat and keep the fine even texture. Boiling temperature tends to make veal stringy. The homemaker who plans to serve veal often will wish to vary the seasonings and accompaniments. Stuffings, vegetables, gravies, while extending the veal will also add flavour to it.

The home economists of the Consumer Section of the Dominion Department of Agriculture suggest the following recipes, which were tested in Canada's kitchen and found especially good.

VEAL GOULASH

MONKEYS
Three monkeys sat in a coconut tree discussing things as they're said to be said one to the other: Now listen, you two.

There's a certain rumor that can't be true. That man descended from our noble race—The very idea is a disgrace. No monkey ever deserted his wife. Starved her babies or ruined her life. And you've never known another monkey.

To leave her babies with others to bank Or pass them on from one to another Until they scarcely know who is their mother. And another thing, you'll never see A monkey build a fence around a coconut tree. And let the cocoanuts go to waste, Forbidding all other monkeys to taste. Why, if I'd build a fence around this tree Starvation would force you to steal from me.

There's another thing a monkey won't do. Get out at night and get on a stew. Or use a gun or club or knife. To take some other monkey's life. Yes—man descended, the monkey cuss, But, brother, he didn't descend from us.

Unlabelled Drugs

The Food and Drugs Act does not demand a label in every case. Labeling is required only when a drug is sold in package form, sealed by or put up by the manufacturer or producer. While all druggists should, and most do, label all drugs, it is not required by law.

The label, then, has been ordained for the benefit and safety of the consumer, who should most certainly read it carefully. To do so may often save his pocketbook, sometimes, in fact, it may save his life. Such legislation is designed wholly for the protection of the public.

Dual Lesson Seen In Story Of Comeback

(An editorial in the Halifax Herald and Mail, March 27th)

The story of Joe Staples is a shining example of personal courage in the face of adversity. Joe Staples is the 21-year-old veteran who has returned to normal life, despite the fact that he lost both his legs in the Normandy campaign.

Boistered by a stout heart, and a fighting spirit, Joe made rapid progress at Camp Hill Hospital, quickly learned to use the artificial legs with which he was fitted just before Christmas, and is now back in civilian life. He has a job, he can walk, and has even learned how to use his new legs on the dance floor.

It is a personal triumph for Joe. His dogged spirit has won through. It has brought a lifetime of happiness for Joe and for his wife—but it has done much more than that. Joe's triumph is a dual lesson: a lesson for other wounded veterans and a lesson for employers.

The traditional "old soldier" of earlier generations, the old soldier with the empty sleeve or the wooden leg, is of the past. No longer need a man who has lost a limb in the service of his country be an object of charity.

To-day, the wounded veteran, like Joe, may find a useful place in civilian life. Many such a veteran is employed and offering excellent service to his employer. Many more can do the same.

It is something for wounded veterans to jump in front of them. And it is something that employers must never forget.

Unfilled Jobs

Total 87,000

The margin between unemployed workers and unfilled jobs has started to narrow, reflecting an improvement in the employment situation, the labor department reported Thursday. On the basis of figures compiled from National Employment Office records at April 4 the department said "the peak of unemployment, associated with reconversion, has been reached and passed."

The number of unemployed applicants registered at offices across Canada at April 4 was 267,000—3,600 more than at Feb. 25, but the smallest monthly increase since V-J Day. However, the number of available unfilled jobs at 87,000 represented an increase of 12,000.

"In view of the fact that over 72,000 servicemen were discharged during March, it is apparent that there was actually a substantial increase in the number of jobs appearing on the labor market in the recent months," the department said.

his neck in a sling). Mr. L. Tory, on behalf of the Town Council spoke a few words stating that at the last meeting of the council this topic was given much discussion and that a clean-up campaign would be launched in the near future. He also stated that the town could not undertake such a venture as proposed without the co-operation of all the residents.
(We will not doubt be hearing of the clean-up campaign in early date so be prepared to help.)

NEXT MEETING: It was announced from the chair that the next meeting of the Board of Trade would be held Thursday, June 6th. It is hoped for a large attendance as Mr. C.
Norman, assistant, economist will be the guest speaker in attendance. By the next meeting date the July 1st plans should be well under way and it is hoped that a report of the work thus far will be given.

HAMILTON BOARD OF TRADE HAS WRITten the local group requesting something or other, but as your correspondent was busily engaged with one of the members present regarding a slight difference of opinion, he received the most of it. However the words from the chair at the end of the conversation were "It isn't very important, so we will let it slide for now."

SEA CADET: Mr. J. McKenna gave thanks to the Board of Trade on behalf of the Sea Cadet organization for their interest that has been shown to them. He also pointed out that Wainwright has one of the finest youth training movements to be found anywhere in the province. In our local Sea Cadet Corp. and that high praise was due the officers for their patience and time spent in this work.

V.E. DAY CELEBRATION: Mr. G.
Graham pointed out to the gathering that it is just one year since the cease fire was signed on the battle fields of Europe. He stated that there had been no celebration in Wainwright to commemorate this historic event and we citizens must keep that "Last we forget" April if it is ever hoped to make a better world, making sure that the boys who gave their lives did not do so in vain.

Mr. Dan Purcell was called upon to speak a few words as he is to be our guest shortly. Mr. Purcell stated that he had been with the Bank of Montreal for 20 years and that Wainwright had all places of residence applied to him most. He said goodbye to those present in the case of a last departure from Wainwright that he might not be able to personally say farewell to his many friends that he had made during his stay with us.

CONCLUSION: With no further business to be conducted and on motion of Messrs. Turner and Stevenson the meeting came to a close with the singing of "The King".

TO MAKE ALLIES

OUT OF ALLIES

Again there is talk of new international alliances—alliances to meet new threats. But alliances do not make allies. At least they don't make them stick. We had allies during the war. But we stopped feeling allied when they began pushing their ideas contrary to our own. Can there be any real basis for alliances other than allegiance to the same idea?

As long as we have one idea—beat the common enemy—we are allies.
But the minute we get two ideas, and try to beat each other with them, we are allies no longer. Is there any idea big enough to unite all people and thus answer the split atom while there is yet time?

The biggest ideas usually are simple. We like the idea of a bunch of youngsters we know who want a better world. They are fighting, they say, for "homes where we're never afraid that Mom and Dad won't stay together. Schools where we like to go instead of have to go. Ganga where we can trust each other and be ourselves. That's what we long for.
That's what we fight for."

Simple as it is this idea easily unites teen-agers. Perhaps an idea just as simple, just as sane, could unite the factions struggling for control of industry. Perhaps it could unite the races and the nations.

As grown-ups we, too, certainly long for homes where we are no longer afraid our husband, wife or children will want to leave us. We, too, long for jobs where we go because we like to, not because we have to. We, too, long for "gangs"—our societies, associations, labor unions, clubs—where we can trust each other and be ourselves. If we too should start to fight for these things, instead of just wishing for them, we would be fighting for the same idea. We would do far more than "understand each other." We would find a common ideology—the one thing that can really make allies out of allies, and make them stick.

Pretty soon, you will be able to go places so fast you might as well stay home.

Last Sunday was Mother's Day. The average girl would have liked to present the dear old lady with a handsomely wrapped son-in-law.

PRO. GOLF AGAIN

IN FULL SWING

Big question mark in golfing circles days—now that the ball supply situation is easing—is whether Byron Nelson will be on hand to defend his Canadian Open title and the Seagram Gold Cup when the masters tee off over the Montreal Beaconfield course June 27th.

The "golfing machine" captured the trophy denoting top Canadian golf honors a year ago when he shot a par 260 over a stiffened Thornhill Golf Club layout north of Toronto.
The Seagram Gold Cup has resided in the club-house of Nelson's home course at Toledo, Ohio, since that time.

In the normal course of events, Nelson could be expected to complete his year for retention of the Gold Cup and the lion's share of the Canadian Open's $10,000 prize money. The fact that the British Open follows closely behind the Canadian show, however, may mean that Nelson will be among the absent when affairs get underway at Beaconfield.

Challenges of one kind or another have been flying back and forth across the Atlantic for several months since outstanding British players indicated that they were not unduly impressed by some of the "will it be at least a possibility that he will decide to skip the Canadian Open and go to Britain to settle the question of transatlantic golfing supremacy. There is a possibility, too, that a number of leading U.S. pros will also make the trip.

Whether Nelson is on hand or not, the Canadian Open has been assured of a star-studded list of competitors.
Strategically timed to fit into the Summer Tournament Schedule of the Professional Golfers' Association of America, the Open probably will draw such well-known U.S. players as Sam Snead, Sam Byrd, Ed Furgol, Craig Wood, Jug McSpaden, Tony Pennington and other American pros as well as a full slate of top-ranking Canadian players.

All of which leaves the matter of the next resting place of the Seagram Gold Cup very much in doubt. Since first won by "compulsion" in 1936, the Gold Cup has done a lot of moving about the country, most of it south of the border because a Canadian golfer has yet to keep it in Canada by winning the Canadian Open.

DESIGNING CARTOONS

FASCINATING WORK

Cartoons have long been familiar to all movie goers, but few of us realize the immense amount of work involved in making them. It is a slow process, demanding numerous careful drawings to create a smooth animated effect.

On a recent trip to the National Film Board, we dropped in to see the animation department in operation.
They were at work on a new cartoon, the script of which called for a man running down a street, the background of houses and shops along the street was painted on a large card. A series of drawings of the man in different stages of running were prepared on a set of celluloid cards.
These celluloid were placed over the street background card, and the background could, of course, be seen through the celluloid.

The animation camera photographed a film frame of the man in one position, the celluloid card was changed to show the man in the next position, another film frame was photographed, and so on, until the man had run down the street.
While the celluloid were being changed, the large background was moved very slightly in the opposite direction to the one in which the man was running, to help create the illusion of movement.

The same painstaking effort goes into every action a figure or an object makes in a cartoon, but despite the hours of work involved, artists find their work fascinating.

SHARE CAMPAIGN

The share selling campaign of this Association commenced on April 22nd and in the first two weeks over 2 1/2% of the objective was reached. This is a very busy season and it is difficult for the collectors to reach each member, so you will save a lot of volunteered time if you will call around at the store

It is the intention of the directors and management that each member be reached in this campaign. The new share money will be used to pay off the borrowed capital. The minimum objective is 50% of this amount.

It is impossible for a few members to shoulder the whole load, the directors and management of your store are trying to build a strong co-operative, they can not do it alone. A strong Co-op depends upon a strong co-operating membership. A little effort on the part of each and every member will have wonderful results.

Did you know that your Co-op—
1. Is the largest store which started in 1945.

2. Had a turnover in the nine months of operation last year 100% greater than any other of the 15 new Co-ops.

3. Is the ninth largest in Alberta.

4. Will allocate to you a dividend for 1945.
